

ACCESS TO WORK FOR JOB INTERVIEW SUPPORT

Do you have a health condition or disability which means you need communication support at job interviews?

Through Access to Work, you could apply for: money for communication support at a job interview.

The money pays for a communication support worker to go to your job interview with you.

You can use this service if you:

- Are Deaf or hard of hearing and need a British Sign Language interpreter or lipspeaker.
- Have a physical or mental health condition or learning difficulty and need communication support.

You will need to apply before the interview takes place, and tell Access to Work the total cost of the communication support you'll need. For help with finding communication support and getting costs, you can contact your employment adviser, or an organisation that specialises in supporting people with your needs.

Access to Work pay the costs after the job interview has taken place.

The money does not have to be paid back, and will not affect your other benefits.
